LOCAL NEWS.

The finest assortment of candles in the West, at Patton's.

Miss Rachel A. Duffy, sister of Frank Duffy, of Nogales, and formerly of Globe, was drowned recently in the St. Lawrence river, New York.

The advance in the price for hauling coke, to 60 cents, cash, has brought many more teams onto the Fort Thomas and Globe road, and coke is arriving every day.

Jacob Suter's building is well under way, and will be completed next week. The dimensions are 60x22 feet. Mr. Suter will put in a large stock of hardware, stoves and tinware.

The sale has been recorded of the Arizona, Banner and Hillside mines, on R. G. Scott to N. L. Amster. His claims are located two, two and a half and four miles northwest of Globe.

An elegant line of Christmas goods, novelties, toys, etc., etc., are exhibited by the Old Dominion Commercial Co. Make your selection early while the stock is complete.

Rev. Father Timmerman, of Solomonsville, is expected here on December 28th, to remain until after New Year. Announcement will be made later of services to be held in the Catholic church.

J. C. Martin, who is well remembered by old residents of Globe, arrived last week from Salem, Oregon. We are pleased to learn that he is again to become a fixture here, having accepted a position with the United Globe Mines.

Joseph Murphy, a brother of the late John Murphy, arrived from Butte, Montana, last week and has applied for letters of administration on his brother's estate. Mrs. Julia Price, a sister, who had been here for almost a year, left for Butte on Thursday last.

F. H. Springer has received a large invoice of imported and domestic cigars. Among the new brands received, "The Davenport" is a prime favorite and is meeting with large sale. Among other choice brands kept by Mr. Springer are Lillian Norcia and Grand Tower, imported Havana, and the Robert Manelli, La Encantadora and El Fausto, domestic cigars of high quality.

Sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Heron in their affliction. Their baby died of diphtheria last Sunday, and their other two children have been dangerously ill with the dread disease, but are now convalescent, and strong hopes are entertained of their recovery. Aside from the Currow and Heron families, there are no cases of diphtheria in Globe, and as a strict quarantine is being observed, it is believed that the disease will not spread further.

Mrs. Clinton B. Fisk, mother of our respected townsman, C. A. Fisk, arrived at Tempe yesterday afternoon and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Hill. Mrs. Fisk is one of the noble women of the United States who are devoting their lives for the good of humanity, and she occupies the honored position of President of the National Board of Home Missions of the Church. She hoped to spend at this place, but a telegram received from Los Angeles has compelled her to alter her plans and she has taken her departure for California. —Tempe News.

William Stevenson returned to Globe on Tuesday last, from a visit of four months' duration in his native state, Vermont, and other parts of New England. Steve greatly enjoyed the trip and was also benefited physically. We are pleased to have him with us again.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Starr, of Mesa, arrived on Thursday, having come via Silver King and the trail. Mrs. Starr will remain to take care of her sister, Mrs. Currow and her children, sick with diphtheria, but who are, happily, convalescing. Mr. Starr will return home today.

The advertisement of D. H. Ming, commission and forwarding merchant, of Fort Thomas, Ariz., appears in this issue of the SILVER BELT. Mr. Ming is well known to our business men and he is handling a large share of the Globe freight. Goods consigned to his care will be promptly forwarded. He provides free corral and water for freighters, and pays cash for freight.

Lieutenant Colonel Austin O. Crane, of the Fourteenth Regiment Infantry, N. G. N. Y., and Mr. John Kasser, of the Kasser Gold Mining Company, arrived on Tuesday from New York. Colonel Crane, who is one of the large stockholders in the Kasser Company, will remain here during the winter and have charge of the company's business. They have a good mine, a new and complete mill, and under competent management the enterprise should prove a success.

H. C. Hitchcock's drug store has been transferred into a veritable Christmas bazaar. His show cases and windows are replete with beautiful holiday goods in great variety. Elegant Xmas cards and souvenirs, booklets, photo and autograph albums, mirrors, glove and handkerchief boxes, picture frames, odor bottles, card cases, writing desks, paper toys of all kinds, and many other pretty novelties. Also choice candles and crystallized fruits in fancy boxes, just received. Mr. Hitchcock's display is well worth an inspection.

Hymenaeal.

We are in receipt of cards announcing the marriage of Mr. Nils S. Berray to Miss Emma J. Kenton, at the home of the bride in Surrey, Indiana, November 23. The contracting parties were until recently residents of Globe, and their many friends here are rejoiced to learn of their happy union. Mr. Berray was formerly superintendent of the Old Dominion Copper Company, and had been with the company many years, and contributed largely to the success of the enterprise. When that property was transferred to its present owners, Mr. Berray accepted the superintendency of Mr. Frank Simpson's copper and iron mines at Hancock, near Silver City, N. M., and is now engaged in opening up those properties.

Miss Kenton, the bride, a niece of Mr. E. Kenton, of Globe, was for two years teacher in the Globe public school. She is a lady of many accomplishments and a favorite among her acquaintances here.

Mr. and Mrs. Berray will be "at home" after December 20th, at Silver City, N. M., where they will reside. The editors of the SILVER BELT offer congratulations.

Smelting Resumed.

The Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company blew in the first furnace on Wednesday last, an event which had been long and anxiously awaited. The company has been hampered in many ways, and especially through the delay in the arrival of coke and needed supplies, owing to the scarcity of teams on the Thomas and Globe road, which will no longer impede work. The capacity of the coke bin is already taxed and coke arriving daily. Another furnace will be fired in a day or two, and within a week or ten days three furnaces will be pouring out a wealth of molten copper. The ore bins, including a temporary receptacle adjoining the smelter, are full of ore, and is also the ore house at the mine. There is a cheering bustle about the works, and Manager S. A. Parnall and assistants have the work well in hand.

At the mine work is progressing well under the experienced direction of Superintendent A. D. McLean. A force of 100 men are employed in development work. The three compartments of the shaft are down about fifty feet below the eighth level, and the work of sinking goes on day and night. The stapes on nearly all the levels look well, and can easily supply ore to keep three furnaces running. The prospect for a large output of copper next year by the Old Dominion Company is certainly encouraging.

Christmas Buyers.

Should defer their purchases until next Monday or Tuesday, when the St. Louis Store will display an elegant assortment of holiday goods, which will be sold at moderate prices. Wait and see them before you buy.

Go to Patton's for your holiday groceries, cranberries, apples, oranges, bananas, lemons, ranch eggs, creamery butter, etc.

A large stock of cooking and heating stoves for sale by J. SUTTER, Globe.

The Sultan Mercantile Company has a very attractive display of toys for the Christmas holidays.

A RACE FOR LIFE.

Fight Between Gila County Officers and the White Mountain Apaches at Cibola—Chief Nant-tan-go-tayz Killed.

Probably few, if any readers of the item published in last Saturday's SILVER BELT, that an Indian had been killed on Cibola by cowboys, entertained the least suspicion that the parties referred to as "cowboys" were Deputy Sheriff E. L. Benbrook and posse. Few, in fact, were aware of his departure from Globe, or of his mission to the Cibola country. The facts in regard to that trip, as related by Mr. Benbrook, are about as follows:

At the October (1895) term of the District Court of Gila county, two Indians, Tonto C 24 and Tonto O 8, were indicted for burglary committed at the Voshburg ranch, in the vicinity of Pleasant Valley. The warrant for the arrest of the Indians wanted was delivered to Deputy Benbrook, who left Globe, December 1, for Cibola to make the arrest. Arriving at Pleasant Valley, he was joined by Bill Voria, Frank Ketcherside and Huse Kyle. The party left the Gentry ranch, three miles above Ellison's, on Thursday morning, December 5, and arrived at Cooley's camp, (Cooley being head chief of the band of Indians), on Cibola creek, 30 miles distant, about sundown.

Nant-tan-go-tayz, the chief then in authority, a brother of Chief Cooley, upon being informed through an interpreter what the officers wanted, consented to the arrest of the two Indians. Tonto C 24 was identified and placed under arrest, and the officers had started to ride away with their prisoner, when Ketcherside recognized the other buck wanted, Tonto O 8, among the forty or fifty Indians in the camp. At this juncture Loco Jim hailed the officers and asked what they wanted with the two Indians, and Captain Jack, the interpreter, rode up and said they could not take the Indians away.

While they were parleying the other Indians began to gather in around the officers, and Nant-tan-go-tayz, the chief, came up close to Ketcherside's horse and made a grab at the bridle rein, but missed it, as the horse jerked his head away. The chief then went up to Voria and with both hands grasped the Winchester hung on the side of the saddle, and attempted to draw the gun from its holster.

Voria, thereupon, caught the Indian's wrist with both hands and broke the hold of gun hand on the gun, when the Indian, retaining his hold on the gun with one hand, grasped the bridle rein of Voria's horse with the other. Just then Tonto C 24, one of the Indians who the posse went to arrest, fired a shot from a distance of about 20 yards, and Voria, seeing that the situation was desperate and that the chief was getting the better of him, drew his six-shooter and fired at his adversary. The Indian threw his head back and avoided the bullet, whereupon Voria placed the pistol close to the Indian's breast and fired again. Nant-tan-go-tayz fell forward on his face without uttering a sound. About twenty-five Indians standing on the side of a hill, some sixty yards away, then fired a volley at the officers, which passed over their heads, and the latter returned the fire from their pistols.

The officers put spurs to their horses and a race for life began, the Indians who were mounted and armed giving chase. After a hard run of half a mile the trail made an abrupt turn and the Indians in the lead, by a flank movement, got ahead of the officers, who, seeing they were cut off, took to the cedar brake to the right of the trail and up the steep side of the mountain. Here the posse got scattered; Voria was in the lead, and, ducking having fallen, he regained the trail, forged ahead alone and reached Ellison's ranch about 12:30 o'clock on Friday morning. Benbrook and Kyle soon came together again in the timber, Benbrook's pony was wounded, and going up the mountain fell and caught the rider's right knee under the saddle, causing him a painful injury. Having returned to the trail, they were again headed off by the Indians and forced once more to take to the timber and were joined by Ketcherside.

Voria, when he reached a narrow defile near Canyon creek, twenty miles from Cibola, saw a signal fire a short distance from the trail, and when Benbrook, Ketcherside and Kyle passed, the embers of the fire were plainly to be seen. The Indians who had got ahead of them on the trail had probably made the fire to signal John Dashi's band of Indians, and had then gone on to the main crossing of Canyon creek, with the intention of ambushing the officers. Suspecting this, Voria left the main trail and crossed Canyon creek lower down, and his companions, under the guidance of Ketcherside, took an old trail that crossed the creek higher up, and they arrived at Ellison's ranch at 3 o'clock Friday morning.

When the fight commenced at Cibola, the officers were compelled to abandon their pack mule which was carrying their blankets, sixty rounds of ammunition, provisions and camp utensils. That any of the men escaped with their lives seems providential, and can be accounted for only by the approach of nightfall, which lent them its kindly protection.

The officers, when they realized the futility of attempting to take the two Indians, tried to get away peaceably, intending to go to Fort Apache and ask the military for assistance, but the Indians, bent on mischief, provoked the fight. The Indians were the aggressors and the officers when attacked were in the discharge of their duty.

The apathy and unwillingness of the military at Apache, on former occasions, to assist civil officers in the apprehension of Indian malefactors is sufficient excuse for Deputy Benbrook not going first to the post, to request a military escort to aid and protect him in the discharge of his duty. It was in August, 1893, that Sheriff J. H. Thompson went to Fort Apache to secure the arrest of Guadalupe and other Indians who murdered young Baker in the Sierra Ancha. Colonel Hunt, then in command at Apache, made no effort to arrest the Indians for whom the Sheriff held warrants, further than that, after two or three days' delay, two scouts went out, as alleged, to get Guadalupe, but returned without him, and on the insistence of Sheriff Thompson was placed in the guard house. The Sheriff then requested an escort to San Carlos, which Colonel Hunt refused him, and, after remaining about ten days at Apache, the Sheriff took Guadalupe from the guard house at 3 o'clock in the morning and, by a forced ride of ninety miles, reached San Carlos safely with his prisoner.

The White Mountain Apaches, living on Cibola creek, are the most warlike and treacherous Indians on the reservation. While ostensibly under the surveillance of the commanding officer at Fort Apache, practically they are under no restraint whatever. They continue in their pristine savagery, enjoying the largest liberty, and retaining their hatred of the whites. They kill cattle and loot ranches when opportunity offers, and are not averse to taking human life.

These Indians, living forty-six miles from Fort Apache, can not be kept in subjection. They roam at pleasure, and may be off the reservation for weeks at a time without the knowledge of the commanding officer at Apache. They are a continual menace to the peace of Eastern Arizona, and it is high time that the Government remove them to the Indian Territory, or elsewhere, where they could be kept under strict surveillance.

In order to show the character of these Indians we will relate a little history. In 1881, some 600 Indians were living on Cibola creek, whom the Government had found it impracticable to remove to San Carlos, as the Indians objected, and were too strong in numbers and warlike in spirit for the authorities to attempt compulsion.

Nock-a-del-kony, a medicine man, by incantations and prophecies that he would bring the dead warriors to life, incited the Indians to rebellion, and to prevent the threatened outbreak Colonel Carr, with a detachment of soldiers and scouts from Fort Apache, went to Cibola to arrest the medicine man. The Indians resisted and were joined by Carr's scouts, who opened fire on the soldiers, killing Captain Headig and ten soldiers, and followed the command to Apache and fired on the post. Nock-a-del-kony, the medicine man, was killed in the engagement at Cibola.

Proceedings were instituted before U. S. District Court Commissioner Kinney, on Thursday, and warrants issued for the arrest of the Indians, to the number of twenty or more, who fired upon Deputy Benbrook and posse, December 5, on Cibola. The warrants were placed in the hands of Deputy U. S. Marshal J. H. Thompson, who, accompanied by Messrs. Benbrook, Ketcherside, Voria and Kyle, left Thursday noon for San Carlos to join Lieutenant Fenton's command and accompany them to Fort Apache, where Deputy Marshal Thompson will apply to Colonel Powell, the commanding officer, for assistance to effect the arrest of the Indians.

TROOPS FROM APACHE.

Meat, Fenton Investigates the Cibola Affair—Gila County Officers in the Fight.

Lieutenant Fenton, Seventh cavalry, and detachment of twenty soldiers, sent out from Fort Apache to investigate the killing of the Indian on Cibola creek, Dec. 5, arrived in Globe on Wednesday last. They were accompanied by William Voria, Frank Ketcherside and Huse Kyle, members of the sheriff's posse that had the fight with Cooley's band of Indians. They were not under arrest, but came to Globe with Lieutenant Fenton, voluntarily, as a matter of prudence, to show their good faith and to pacify the Cibola Indians, who supposed they were to be brought to Globe under arrest.

Lieutenant Fenton's investigation of the trouble at Cibola corroborates the statements of the Gila county officers engaged in the affray, published elsewhere, and leaves no ground for action against the officers.

Colonel Powell, commanding at Fort Apache, was notified of the Cibola fight on Friday, the 7th inst., and Lieutenant Fenton and detachment left the same night for Cooley's camp. Upon their arrival there they found the Indians in a state of great excitement, and their demeanor was so threatening that for a time it looked as though they might attack the troops. The Lieutenant found that the Indian killed by Voria was Nant-tan-go-tayz, lag V 7, a brother of Cooley, chief of the band. He was shot in the right breast, four inches below the neck, and the bullet ranged downward, diagonally through the body and came out in the region of the left kidney.

The Indians expressed displeasure at the presence of the troops and informed Lieutenant Fenton, through an interpreter, that they wanted to settle their difficulties themselves. Cooley and two other Indians accompanied the command to Voshburg's and Ellison's ranches. At Voshburg's the lying interpreter pointed out Frank Ketcherside as the man who killed Nant-tan-go-tayz, whereupon old Chief Cooley, trembling with excitement, and with gun in hand, assumed a threatening attitude as though about to shoot at Ketcherside. A soldier, observing the move, threw a cartridge into his gun and Cooley subsided. When the soldiers reached Canyon creek, on their way to Pleasant valley, they were met by John Dashi and band of Indians, armed and mounted, who asked permission of Lieutenant Fenton to accompany them to fight the whites. The Lieutenant informed Dashi that he was not out for the purpose of fighting the whites, and told the Indians to return to their camp.

Lieutenant Fenton and detachment left Globe Thursday morning for San Carlos and expected to proceed to Fort Apache the next day.

Pure Blood

Is the secret of the restoration to health which Hood's Sarsaparilla gives.

"It gives me pleasure to recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured me of many complaints, and purified my blood. I was troubled with my liver, had hip disease and other troubles, with swelling of my ankles. For a long time I had to walk with a cane. For several years I was gradually breaking down. I had the grip in a severe form. I procured six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and it did me up. All my ills have gone and I feel like a new person. I sleep well and heartily." BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED OUT OF THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SEVENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT, of the Territory of Arizona, in and for the county of Gila, on the 21st day of November, 1895, and to me directed and delivered, on a judgment rendered in the said District Court on the 20th day of October, 1895, in favor of J. W. Westworth, and against George H. Curry, H. L. Townsend and Hugo Richards, wherein I am commanded to make the sum of four hundred and seventy-six dollars and no cents, with interest from date of judgment at the rate of five per cent. per annum, until satisfied, together with all costs and accruing costs.

And whereas, I did, on the 21st day of November, 1895, in pursuance of said execution, levy upon the following described real property, to-wit: All the right, title, claim and interest of said George H. Curry, H. L. Townsend and Hugo Richards, in and to the following described real estate, to-wit: The Grand Prize Mining Claim, the Lockwood Mining Claim, and the Grand Prize Mill site, together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereto in anywise belonging. The above described mining claims and mill site are situated in Green Valley Mining District, on what is known as Walker Creek, in said Gila County, Arizona Territory.

Public notice is hereby given that on the twenty-third day of December, 1895, at the hour of one o'clock P. M., in front of the county court house, in the town of Globe, Gila County, Arizona Territory, I will sell all the right, title, claim and interest of said Curry, Townsend and Richards, in and to the above described property, at public auction, to the highest and best bidder for cash, hereof money of the United States, to satisfy said execution and all costs.

J. H. THOMPSON, Sheriff Gila County, Arizona.

Dated October 21st, 1895.

NOTICE.

TO ALL WHOM THESE PRESENTS MAY BE:

I, the undersigned, and owner of the Hornet North and Hornet South, and co-owner of the Silver King North and Silver King South mining claims, situated in the Mineral Mining District, Gila County, Arizona, do hereby notify all and each and all persons that I am the owner and in full possession of each property, regardless of all the exemption laws passed by Congress in 1892 and 1893, and have (as mentioned) for previous years having been performed, and I in full possession of the same. Now, therefore, this is to notify all persons, especially Thomas McGraw, Bert Collins and W. J. Hamilton, that I am the owner of said property and will continue in possession of the same regardless of such laws as may be made by such as may assume possession of said property and I have retained said property under the Act of Congress of 1893 and did, holding that the same is lawful.

Dated this 20th day of November, 1895. JOHN D. EYD. Witness: R. H. DAY. IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY of Gila, Territory of Arizona. I, the undersigned, and owner of the Hornet North and Horn
